In Search of a City

My assignment: To write about San Francisco and San Franciscans. My deadline: Now and tomorrow and all the tomorrows. My problem: To find the city and its people...

BUT THERE are so many San Franciscos, so many San Franciscans. So you walk and you talk, you look and listen, and the truth goes on dancing brightly—just beyond reach. Where does the pulse of the city beat most strongly? The clichés flood into your mind, making their familiar patterns: Powell St.'s wooden merry-go-round (and the brass ring of the cable bell), Siciliano fishing boats bobbing like corks in the debris-laden waters of the Wharf, the sailboat (white and fluffy) against Alcatraz (dark and craggy), Coit Tower all golden and perfect at sunset, looking like the last time I saw Parrish (Maxfield). The picture postcard San Francisco, dream city of a million tourists, and, strangely and wonderfully, of a million residents.

A MILLION PEOPLE, a million San Franciscans—where do you find the prototype? The wellworn shell-thin adjectives come to mind easily enough: sophisticated, urbane, wordly. The fashionably emaciated woman in the $500 Little Black Suit That Will Go Anywhere, with the slim legs and the even tan and the corner booth at El Prado (and a laugh that sounds suspiciously neurotic). The Montgomery St. gentleman in the homburg, with a pied à terre on Nob Hill, a house down the Peninsula, another at Tahoe, heading for lunch at Jack's (his eyes are tired, and they sneer). Mr. and Mrs. San Francisco, stepping right out of the four-color magazine ads, the real thing, the genuine article. And they've been around—everywhere, except their own city.

YOU WALK ALONG Market St. and look at the San Franciscans on parade, piling into buses, bumping into each other, crowding off the curbs, darting across the intersections like waterbugs on a pond. Stout, perspiring housewives, wispy of hair and panting of breath, in cloth coats that are too short, too long, too thin. Tough young boys, all leather jacket and grease, slouching along, hands defiant in tight pockets. Schoolgirls four abreast in a sweatery cloud of giggles, swimming like bait in front of a pack of sailors. The lame, the halt, the blind and the man giving away Bible quotations, softly murmuring "Bless you" each time a passerby shoulders him aside. These are San Franciscans too busy to look up at Twin Peaks in all its green glory and the Ferry Building in its Skyway-hidden shame, too involved in their own struggles to have heard of El Prado (is it a movie?) or Jack's (a bar, maybe?).

THE CITY—everywhere and nowhere, to each his own, to each his zone. The neon fable of Chinatown (clatter of chopsticks and clink of glass), and down the dark alleys and up the dark stairs, the tenements and the bare wooden floors, the communal bathrooms and the sweatshops (but the children: fresh-faced as flowers after a rain). The garlicky gregariousness of North Beach (the pizza, the Dago red; whaddya know-a Joe), and at midnight the old men, gray under their wide-brimmed anonymous hats, alone in the corners of Mike's pool hall and the old women looking down from the open windows in their tiny flats (but tomorrow they will meet in Washington Square to talk of the good days in Lucca). You don't get the picture, all you people. Why aren't you at Kan's and the Ricksha, at New Joe's and Vaness's and Sorrento? Acting like real San Franciscans.

THE SAN FRANCISCANS—who are they, and where? The Mayor nibbling on French bread at lunch, waving his expressive hands, talking about his boyhood struggles—he's one. So is the little Negro boy playing in the rubble of the razed Western Addition, looking around carefully, picking up a rock, heaving it through the window of a dead mansion. Russ Wolden and his handsome wife rolling along California St. at midnight in their sleek convertible—they're San Franciscans. So is the young Marina housewife pushing her baby carriage along Chestnut St., looking for bargains in the neighborhood grocery (certainly she knows about the Junior League—when her little boy is old enough to play baseball, maybe he'll be in it). Commodore Dan London, dapper in his yachting outfit, bounding up the stone steps of his St. Francis Hotel—he's a San Franciscan. So is Monk Fowler, the ex-fighter who peddles papers at Fifth and Mission.
So is Horace Stoneham, backing his Cadillac convertible out of his Telegraph Hill apartment. So is the newcomer washing his car (with the Texas license plates) in front of the house he just bought in the Sunset District; he never heard of Ben Swig or Louis Lurie, but he's a San Franciscan all the same.

SAN FRANCISCO: all things to all people.
Sunday brunch at the Lochinvar, or a hot dog at the Beach. Standing in line for a midnight movie at the Fox, or standing in line for an elevator to Top o' the Mark. Irish Coffee at the Buena Vista, a beer at Laurel Lodge, or a sunbath on the Marina Green. A cold wind ruffling the wash on the line in the old backyards of Hayes Valley, a cold martini served by a butler in a Pacific Heights mansion, coffee growing cold on a mahogany desk in a Russ Building office. Pigeons in the square, squirrels in the Park, queer ducks in the bushes, and a white swan to feed at the Palace of Fine Arts—little bits of a big city, impossible to glue together.

SAN FRANCISCO, yours and mine, nobody's and everybody's—always moving away just as you reach out to touch it.

U. S. Prods Russ To Start Serious Geneva Bidding

By Associated Press and New York Herald Tribune

GENEVA, May 22 — The United States challenged the Soviet Union today to put forward "constructive" proposals on Germany to pull the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference out of its vacuum of sterile debate.

This prod was applied after Secretary of State Christian A. Herter tried to reassure the Russians that Allied plans for reunifying Germany contained guarantees of security to all European states, including the Soviet Union.

Herter said the U. S. did not insist on linking disarmament measures with the German problem.

"We are prepared," he said, "to resume general disarmament negotiations in an appropriate forum at any time."

The American diplomat, however, appealed to Gromyko to accept the Western peace plan linking German unification over a 30-month period with successive stages of a system for European security and a start on global disarmament.

These developments came as the conference recessed for the week end after ten days of work. So far there has been no solid discussion of the Berlin crisis, German reunification, or European security plans.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko tried to maneuver the conference into negotiating on the proposed Soviet draft peace treaties with West Germany

Loan Office Bandit Freed By Captors

Citizens Federal Savings and Loan Association at 706 Market street was robbed of $3617 yesterday by a middle-aged man who claimed to be a dope addict.

After scooping the money into one of the firm's own cash bags a few minutes before 5 p. m., he dashed out into busy Geary street.

Shouts of a pursuing official attracted four sailors from the Navy carrier Oriskany. They chased and caught the running bandit, but let him go after a few minutes, because no one came after him.

TELLER
Georgia Cutler, 23, of 104 Dellbrook avenue, the teller, said the man came to her window and thrust a note at her. She said it read:

"This is a holdup. I am a dope addict and I want all your money. If you don't hurry, I'll kill you."

Mrs. Cutler said she saw no weapon but pushed over a pile of bills.

"Do you have a bag?" asked the man. Mrs. Cutler passed one over and the bandit stuffed the bills into it.

Auto Runs Wild On Lombard Hill, Pins, Kills Man

An 89-year-old man was pinned to the front of his home and fatally crushed by a runaway car yesterday afternoon.

Joseph T. Paganetto, a retired refrigeration engineer, had just stepped out of the door of his home at 570 Lombard street when a hurtling car with a frantic driver at the wheel leaped the curb and hit him.

The driver, Sue Ging Woo, 41, a pantryman, said the car's handbrake had failed on the steep hill and he had swerved up on the sidewalk to miss a group of school children who were crossing Lombard at Powell a few yards away.

INJURIES FATAL

Paganetto died an hour later at Mission Emergency Hospital.

Woo told Policemen Ron Judson and Angelo Mecchi that he had parked his car in front of his home up the hill at 562 Lombard to wait for his wife and son.

Suddenly, he said, the car began to roll.

Woo told the investigating officers he had the handbrake on while waiting with the engine running. He said he pulled on the lever in vain as the car rolled toward Paganetto. But apparently, he did not try to jam down the

The storm is due to move down the Sierra today to the Yosemite area before it dies out.

Church Will Get Stanford Hospital

By David Perlman

Stanford University and Presbyterian leaders in California have begun active negotiations on church acquisition of Stanford Hospital here, The Chronicle learned yesterday.

There will be no interruption of medical service at the hospital.

death so he could shed his wife and two children to marry an 18-year-old coed, detectives said today.

Police said the fantastic scheme of Ronald Field, 27, an instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, fooled authorities, and even his father, until the truth was learned from his girl friend.

The girl was identified by Allegheny County detective chief Ted Botula as Carol Hickey, an attractive journalism freshman from Columbia, Pa. She said she had planned to join Field somewhere in the West after he dropped out of sight.

Miss Hickey confessed the hoax to police after a man for whom she had worked as a baby sitter identified a picture of the missing Field as that of a man she had introduced as her fiance.

Field, who is a lay minister at two suburban Methodist churches, called her Saturday from Tucson, Ariz., she said.

Miss Hickey said Field wrecked his automobile at the foot of a steep hill near the Monongahela river May 13 to make it appear he had fallen out and drowned.

So realistic was the "death" scene that firemen dragged the river for two days in an effort to recover the body.

Miss Hickey said he had given her a diamond engagement ring and that they had gone to Virginia in an unsuccessful attempt to get married. They were unable to get the license because she forgot her birth certificate.

"This is a holdup. I am a dope addict and I want all your money. If you don't hurry, I'll kill you."

Alabaman Wants To Burn That Book

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 22 (AP)—A segregationist legislator whose protests helped get a children's book taken off library shelves in Alabama declared today the book should be burned.

The director of the State Public Library Service, Miss Emily Reed, disclosed that "The Rabbits' Wedding," a picture story which shows a white rabbit marrying a black rabbit, is available to readers only on request.

She said the book was "withdrawn from general circulation" after she and members of her staff received inquiries from several persons, including State Senator E. O. Eddins of Marengo County.

Eddins said he feels "this book and many others should be taken off the shelves and burned." He did not mention any others by name, but said some "are of the same nature and others are communistic."

The legislator, who has taken an active part in measures to preserve Alabama's segregation, questioned Miss Reed several weeks ago when she appeared before an interim study committee to submit a budget for her department and again two days ago.

Miss Reed said later that Drinking was blamed yesterday for the head-on Bayshore Freeway crash that killed five San Francisco nurses and a Palo Alto contractor on Wednesday night.

Laboratory tests revealed that the contractor, Warren Pope Hamilton, 43, was drunk when his blacked-out panel truck smashed into the car containing the five nurses.

Criminologist Lowell Bradford of Santa Clara county said Hamilton's blood alcohol level was .20 and that he was in an "advanced stage of alcoholic influence" at the time of the crash.

Big Wave Sweeps 3 to Death at Pt. Arena

Special to The Chronicle
POINT ARENA (Mendocino county), May 22—A huge wave washed three abalone hunters to their death this morning while the fiance of one watched.

The four, from Yountville in Napa county, were looking for abalone about 10 a. m. along the rocks at Iversen Landing Beach some three miles south of Point Arena.

One of them, Jack Clark, 46, operator of a cab company in Yountville, was a little farther out than his companions.

He said he saw a wave about 20 feet high rushing toward him. He lay flat on the rocks, Clark related, and the wave rolled over him.

It landed with full force on his three companions, tearing them from the rocks and washing them into the sea.

Clark said he watched as his friends bobbed briefly in the water.

The first to disappear was the woman he planned to marry, Mrs. Hazel Vredveld, 37.

Then two of his employees, Betty Myers, 33 and her husband, George, 40, disappeared in the sea.

Clark went to Point Arena for assistance.

The bodies of the two women were recovered, but Myers' body could not be found.

Clark was taken to the Point Arena medical center, suffering from shock.

My Answer

Can Satan Hypnotize?

By Billy Graham

QUESTION—I have asked the Saviour to make me His, but Satan still seems to be able to make me say and do things I ought not to do, as if he had the power to hypnotize one with evil thought.—D. L. P.

ANSWER—You say you think you are hypnotized by Satan. Before one can be hypnotized, one must yield himself and obey every command. You go on to say that you do things you ought not to do, and that seems to indicate that you have yielded yourself to the wrong master.

The Bible says, "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness." The human heart has the power of decision. It can decide for good or evil, depending on the desire. The alcoholic must yield himself to alcohol. That goes for any other sin.

But it is also possible to yield yourself to good rather than evil. "To whom ye yield yourself servants to obey, his servants ye are." I would say your problem stems from the fact that you haven't wholly yielded your heart to Christ.

QUESTION—You say that the Bible says we should not tell lies, but I notice older people are given to misrepresentations and exaggerations. Is there such a thing as a white lie? If lying is wrong, then it would seem that any degree of falsehood would be lying.—J. G.

ANSWER—You are right. The Bible says, "Thou shalt not bear false witness." Of course, God looks on the heart, and He judges us by the intent. If our intentions are to deceive and hurt others, then even a "white lie" is very wrong. There may be occasions when a withholding of part of the truth may be justified.

But lying and misrepresentation have become part and parcel of our social life. Living a lie is as bad as telling a lie.

Some have called the disaster of crumbling buildings following the San Francisco earthquake an act of God, but a distinguished architect, after investigating the tragedy, reported, "Dishonest mortar was responsible for nearly all the damage in San Francisco." If our lives are to stand God's test, they must be built of honest mortar.

QUESTION—Why do Christians hate the Jews; yet, they believe in one? This may be a strange question to ask, but I would like to know your answer.—D. S.

ANSWER—Where did you get the idea that Christians hate the Jews? It is very easy for a minority group to harbor feelings quite out of proportion to the facts. Your question implies something that I have not found to be true. Most true Christians that I know love the Jewish people. How could they do otherwise? Most of the books of the Bible were written by Jews. As you say, Christ was a Jew. And many great Americans have been of Jewish descent. I would go so far as to say that it is improbable that anyone who holds Jews in contempt is a Christian, in the strict sense of the word.

It is easy to judge the many by the few. Of course there are bigoted people who love
